

OUR STORY

Sancti Phi was (re)created in the latter part of the 1980's through a search for a deeper meaning for life and a better food to eat.

Studying the different scripture of ancient times I regularly came across certain foods that the Saints, monks and holy people chose to eat. In biblical scripture there were many references to special meals that were always prepared with loving prayer. In one particular meal that was from the old testament, I read of a meal that only the "holy priests" were allowed to partake of. I pondered and meditated on this for quite a while for I believed, and still do, that we are all children of God and that we all have a right to partake of sacred meals. There were certain ingredients in these meals which seemed to enhance the properties of this special "cake", as it was known.

Later on, I was reading the new testament and became quite passionate when reading of another meal that John the Baptist lived on. I figured if it was good enough for a saint to eat then it was a good food. I began making it for myself and for friends who would always comment that this food is as good as any that is on offer and it should be given to the world. I declined that opportunity for many years until persistence from others changed my way of thinking and I decided to take the steps to find a way to market this special food in a way that all could benefit. While taking steps to do so I came across a video of a man, an extraordinary human, called Don Tolman and was transfixed to the spot, shivers were going up and down my spine, tears were welling up in my eyes as I heard him speak of a special meal that he had painstakingly uncovered through many, many years research and study. His knowledge surpassed anything that I had heard anybody else ever speak of. I was dumbfounded. He had done what I was hoping to do and was offering a convenient meal that was far superior to anything else that was available, and I decided there and then to drop what I was doing and climb on board with him. His knowledge and message, was, and still is today, one of the most important messages of our time for the health of humanity.

Unfortunately, it seems that when there is a strong healthy message to be heard there is also a strong interference from the "other side" that wishes to stop such a message getting out to the people and many times Don's message has been interfered with, and every time this happens, we, the people of humanity, are the poorer and sicker for it.

I am honoured and blessed to have Don Tolman as a true and trusted friend, a brother and my mentor. He has taught me more than any other person living on this earth. I feel now that I have come full circle and am at a point where I am now again led to offer these special meals that I started to uncover in my own humble search many years ago. It is disappointing that Don will not be able to participate in sharing his important passion of whole foods with the world, but I feel his spirit is within the food and the message and the love and prayer that goes with the food and this company.

We are, as this message is being put together, receiving genuine testimonials that this food is changing peoples lives for the better. I am deeply indebted to Don for re-igniting the passion that has been within me for as long as I can remember, and this happens every time I hear him speak. I now offer these meals to those who wish to partake. Sancti Phi is the first of these meals.

May we all learn to create in a way that will help build strong community, in love and trust, and happiness and prosperity, never to take away from another, their right to share a vision.

May we all reach into the mind of imagination and manifest through the heart, our true purpose, and share it with the world.

Your brother and friend,

Pete
